PROGRESSIVES EN- DORSE WILSON

Sixteen of Nineteen Who Framed
Roosevelt's First Platform Commend Legislation Done.

(By Associated Press)

New York, Nov. 1.—Sixteen of the nineteen members of the resolutions committee of the first Progressive party convention, which framed the platform on which Theodore Roosevelt was nominated for the presidency in 1912, endorsed a statement issued here Tuesday night by the Democratic national committee commending the "legislative achievements of President Wilson." Eleven of the number signed the statement, which also urged the re-election of the President.

Those who signed the statement were John M. Parker of Louisiana, vice presidential candidate on the present Progressive ticket; former Governor Lucius C. Garvin of Rhode Island; former Governor Joseph M. Carey of Wyoming, one of the seven governors who came out for Roosevelt in 1912; Judge Albert D. Norton of Missouri and Hugh T. Halbert of Minnesota, who were Progressive candidates respectively for United States senator and governor in their respective states; Frank M. Howard of Vermont; M. C. Dubuca of New Mexico; James H. Ingersoll of Idaho; Arthur G. Wray of Nebraska; Clarence B. Strouse of Virginia and J. W. McCormick of Texas.

Those who, it is announced, endorsed the statement were: William Allen White of Kansas, George B. Hyson of Delaware, Andrew J. Stone of West Virginia, William R. Fairley of Alabama and Isaac Newton Stevens of Colorado.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

He was on trial for bigamy. "What," queried the judge, "ever induced you to marry fourteen wives?" "Superstition, your honor," replied the prisoner. "Thirteen, you know, is considered an unlucky number."—Indianapolis Star.

What is mind? No matter. What is matter. Never mind.—T. H. Key.

"Has your boy Josh decided what he is going to do for a living?" "No," replied Farmer Cornsossel. "Josh is that unselfish he keeps thinkin' about how I'm gettin' along an' never pays no attention at all to his own prospects."—Washington Star.

We have seen better days.—Timon of Athens.

A messenger rushed into the financier's presence with the breathless exclamation: "Your wife tried to start the fire with gasoline and—" "Great Caesar!" ejaculated the startled husband, "and gasoline 40 cents a gallon!"—Judge.

Visitor (noticing empty cage).—"Did your canary die a natural death?" Bobby—"Yes'm; the cat ate him."—Boston Transcript.

How God must love the world!—Francesca Miller.

"I admire the ingenuity of the man who compiled the pocket dictionary." "For what?" "For getting in so many words that nobody would ever have any possible occasion to use."—Pittsburgh Post.

Notice!

Some of the nervous members of the club have objected to the appointment of Will Sleep as night watchman of the club. So we have canned Will Sleep and have appointed E. A. R. Pounder of Baltimore, Md., to fill the place.

Charity.

"Please, kind lady," said the wayfarer, "I ain't had a bite to eat in 24 hours."

"You are just the man I'm looking for," replied the lady of the house. "My husband gathered a mess of mushrooms this morning and I want to make sure they are not toadstools. Just wait a moment and I'll bring you a dish of them."

Removing a Menace.

Casey's principal failing was a liking for whiskey, and numerous efforts had been made to reform him. One day the local priest decided to frighten him into the ranks of teetotalers, relates Warren Ellis, the popular insurance man.

"Casey," he said sternly, "I warn you that the next glass of whiskey you drink will at once transform you from a man into a mouse!"

"Do yes mane to say, yer riverence," asked Casey in horror, "that Oi will change into a mouse if Oi drink any more whiskey?"

"You will," said the priest, hiding a smile.

Casey at once put on his hat and coat.

"Ah," exclaimed the reverend gentleman. "Going to sign the pledge, eh?"

"No, sorr," replied Casey. "O'm goin' to drown the cat!"

AT THE COLONIAL.

If you want to meet Sammy Lane and know all about her sweet love, her thrilling life among those good and bad folks of the Ozarks—if you want to know about the man who would not fight for her, also about the man who risked his life for her dear soul—if you want to know about Sammy's father, Jim Lane, the old Bald Knobber; Uncle Ike, the postmaster at the Forks, with his "Ba thundas;" "Preachin' Bill," "A-sayin' thing as good as David Harum;" "Wash Gibbs," and the old "Shepherd," and all the rest of the people who lived among the hills, you can find it all in "The Shepherd of the Hills," the dramatization of Harold Bell Wright's novel, which will be seen at the Colonial Friday night. The dramatization was made by Mr. Wright with the assistance of Elsbury W. Reynolds. It is said to be even more interesting than the story in book form.
